

Resources for Obtaining Student Data

Many grants require information about the pool of students relevant to the proposed project. Metrics might include the number of students in a major, demographics (e.g., ethnicity, gender, income, first-generation status), retention and graduation rates, or non-academic factors such as mental health needs.

Here are some of your options for gathering this information on students:

Big Picture Data Sets

Explore University Analytics & Institutional Research (UAIR) student data fact books.

Departmental Sources

Consult with the Assistant Dean for Research in the relevant college or school, or the director of student advising for the department.

Fine-Grain Student Data

For complex or detailed data sets (e.g., students enrolled in multiple degree programs who are low-income and from an underrepresented minority group), contact UAIR at least six weeks before your data is needed; more urgent requests cannot be guaranteed. Start by filling out the Data Request Form, and specify that the request is for a grant proposal.

Other Consultants

Staff at the following offices can assist if your project fits their categories:

- ▶ Non-Academic Needs and Experiences: For information about undergraduate students' engagement outside the classroom, consult Assessment & Research in Student Success & Retention Innovation. Complete the consultation request form or contact Director Kendra Thompson-Dyck at kthompd@arizona.edu.
- ▶ Hispanic-Serving Institution Data: For undergraduate data related to U of A as a Hispanic-Serving Institution, contact Riley Mclsaac, Associate Director of Grants Development, at rmcisaac@arizona.edu.
- ▶ Graduate Student Data: For graduate student data across multiple departments, contact Institutional Researcher Tom Rhodes at the Graduate College: trhodes1@arizona.edu.
- ▶ Career Prospects: For reports on job openings, salaries, and job growth rates, reach out to Curricular Affairs for a market report at curricular_affairs@list.arizona.edu
- ▶ General Training and Student Support Grants: For questions about training grants and other student support grants, contact Courtney Coffey, Research Development Associate and Education & Inclusion lead: ccoffey@arizona.edu.

